Exempt Building Work.

The Building Act 2004 exempts certain building work from requiring a building consent. (Section 41 and 42a) The exemptions are listed in Schedule 1 of the Building Act 2004. More information about this can be accessed at www.dbh.govt.nz/bc-no-consent.

It is the owner's responsibility ultimately to determine whether any proposed work is exempt from requiring a building consent.

All building work, and this includes work exempted from the requirement to obtain a building consent, must still comply with the Building Act 2004 and comply fully with the building code. The proposed work may also need to comply with other relevant legislation, regulations or by-laws.

Kaikoura District Council advises the owner to obtain advice, if they are not able to clearly determine that the work is exempt work, from appropriately qualified persons. Some examples of appropriate persons include; the Building Consent Authority, an Architect or Engineer, Certifying Plumber or Registered Electrician. Other appropriate people may also be able to advise you.

The owner may lodge a decision for exempt work on the property file at Kaikoura District Council. To do this we require a completed, "Application for exemption of building work", form. The reason for the work being exempt must be clearly described. You may attach supporting information with the application, such as plans and specifications.

Kaikoura District Council does not examine the validity of the content of information and does not take liability for its content. The building work will not be considered exempt from the requirements of a building consent unless Kaikoura District Council notifies this in writing. Council may require more clarity in some instances regarding the exemption. Council will notify you in writing whether it is accepted as exempt or otherwise.

Kaikoura District Council will charge a fee for lodging the application and information on the property file.

Applications may also be made for exemption by the Territorial Authority (Kaikoura District Council) under Schedule 1(k) Building Act 2004. In considering Schedule 1(k) we may have more requirements for information, in order for us to be reasonably satisfied that (k) is appropriate and can be applied specifically to the application. Application for exemption under schedule 1(k) will be charged at $190 per hour.

Please note; undertaking work that is not exempt without first obtaining a building consent is an offence under Section 40 Building Act 2004.
